Tallinna Reaalkool (Tallinn Secondary Science School) was founded in 1881 as the second high school in the capital of Estonia with the aim to educate science and technology specialists. Since then a special emphasis has been laid on science and technology subjects, however the humanities, sports and music have not been forgotten.

Our national examination results are one of the best in Estonia, especially in the field of science, where they are often the leading ones in the country.

The Estonian educational system is based on courses. One course consists of 35 learning-hours and whenever this number of lessons is completed a course grade is released. In most schools there is no availability to select courses with different levels of difficulty, as the curriculum is nationally set.

Andres Erbsen completed the compulsory national curriculum in Tallinna Reaalkool (Tallinn Secondary Science School, registration code: 75017751) on June 20, 2013 and graduated with gold medal. His results were as following
